VOLUME 1, ISSUE 1

AUGUST 2001

ANKAAA REVIVAL

ANKAAA is the peak advocacy and support agency for indigenous artists and art centres in the Top End of Australia. With 26 member art centres representing over 3,500 artists ANKAAA's role is to speak up for indigenous artists and further develop the indigenous arts market.

In November 2000, the members of ANKAAA met at the Frog Hollow Centre for the Arts to discuss the future of the organisation and develop a Strategic Plan. This Strategic Plan now forms the cornerstone of ANKAAA activities and has served as a useful tool to explain to businesses, government agencies and other arts organisations what ANKAAA can and does do.

In March 2001, ANKAAA appointed a new manager, Susan Congreve, to work closely with the executive. The ANKAAA executive is made up of representatives from the four ANKAAA regions namely; the Tiwi Islands, Arnhem Land, Darwin / Katherine and the Kimberley. Djambawa Marawili, the Chairman represents Buku Larrngay Mulka and the interests of northeast Arnhem Land. Pedro Wonaeamirri from Jilamara Arts and Crafts is the Deputy Chairman and he works alongside BJ Timaapatua and Thecla Puruntatameri who represent Tiwi Design and Munupi Arts and Crafts respectively. John Bulun Bulun, a renowned Central Arnhem Land artist, is the representative for Maningrida Arts and Culture and Adrian Isaac, chairman of the Kimberley Law and Culture Centre is the member for Western Australia.

With the strong leadership of the executive, ANKAAA has moved forward in the past few months, re-establishing itself as a major player in the indigenous arts and crafts industry and raising its national profile. Once again ANKAAA is consulted on industry issues, policies and initiatives and the organisation is delivering a range of services to members including advocacy, resourcing, referral and liaison.

The ANKAAA Office has recently moved from East Wing at the Frog Hollow Centre for the Arts to the West Wing at the Frog Hollow Centre for the Arts, access via 56 Woods St, Darwin.

INDUSTRY DEVELOPMENT FOR TOP END ART CENTRES

ANKAAA APPOINTS AN INDUSTRY DEVELOPMENT OFFICER

In August 2001, Stephanie Hawkins was appointed the Industry Development Officer for ANKAAA. Stephanie was formerly employed as Manager at Munupi Arts and Crafts on Melville Island. The role of Industry Development Officer is to work with Executive Committee and the Manager, Susan Congreve, to implement the organisation's vision statement and ANKAAA's Strategic Plan within the given timeframes and according to the priorities identified by the members. A major focus of the Industry Development Officer's position is to undertake fieldwork and give on-site support and training to artists, art centres and their staff.

This involves the production of the newsletter, ANKAAA -The Arts Backbone, on a quarterly basis and fortnightly information sheets sent directly to all ANKAAA art centres. The Arts Backbone is a "good news" newsletter informing ANKAAA art centres, funding organisation's and other agencies what goes on in the Top End Indigenous Art Centres.

Other tasks for the Industry Development Officer include sourcing training and funding for art centres on request. These can include marketing, packaging, exhibition development and executive roles. Developing and maintaining an Indigenous art resource for ANKAAA art centres which will include sample contracts, procedures manuals, copyright, examples of best practice and bench marking documentation, business plans and other resources.

Advocacy and promotion on behalf of the ANKAAA art centres, which includes contact lists, brochures, information, web access of all the ANKAAA art centres to distribute at all levels.

ANKAAA is currently assisting with Industry Development for art centres through IT development, e-commerce and establishing a web presence for all art centres.

INDIGENOUS ARTISTS AND THE NEW TAX SYSTEM

With the introduction of the New Tax System on 1 July 2000, arrangements were put in place to ensure that indigenous artists living in remote localities did not have tax taken from their proceeds from art sales if they had not applied for an Australian Business Number (ABN). These arrangements, which are effective to 30 June 2001, apply to artists who received less than $10,000 from art sales in a year.

The Australian Taxation Office (ATO) met with representatives of the indigenous arts industry, ATSIC, the Australia Council and the Federal Minister for the Arts, Peter McGauran and his staff on 30 April 2001 to review the existing arrangements and to agree on what approaches should be adopted from 1 July 2001.

Meeting outcomes

1. The ATO acknowledges that education programs to inform taxpayers of, and to assist taxpayers with their obligations under the New Tax System had not effectively reached indigenous Australians residing in remote localities. Indigenous artists faced language, locality and cultural issues that were unique and that warrant specific consideration during the implementation of the new system.

2. The ATO is committed to the principle that a person cannot be expected to comply with the taxation law without education and support that is appropriate to the needs of that person.

3. The ATO will support a series of meetings or summits in key remote localities to ensure that views of members of the remote indigenous communities are taken into account in developing effective programs to deliver tax system education and support to indigenous businesses. A working party with industry representatives has been formed to plan these summits, including recommendations for their timing.

4. Pending the outcomes of the summits, and the delivery of the assistance programs developed through those summits, the ATO does not expect art centres to withhold tax from payments to indigenous artists who do not quote an ABN. To relieve art centres of their obligations in this regard, a notice has been placed in a special Government Gazette dated 25 June 2001 reducing the amount required to be withheld to nil. The notice has effect for the entire 2001-2002 financial year.
5. Indigenous artists seeking assistance with taxation matters prior to the development and delivery of further assistance programs should contact the Aboriginal & Torres Strait Islander Resource Centre on 13 10 30

WARLAYIRTI ARTISTS CELEBRATE NEW CULTURE CENTRE

Warlayirti Artists in Balgo, WA have just celebrated the opening of the new Culture Centre. On 21 July people from across the Kutjungka region (Balgo, Billiluna, Mulan, Yaka Yaka), across the Kimberley and across Australia traveled to Balgo to join in the opening party.

Around 600 people came to see the new facility, officially opened by Senator Richard Alston, and to join in the day long party. It was a fantastic vote of confidence in the community of Balgo and a great mix of traditional and contemporary cultural expression.

The new Culture Centre is an extension to the existing art centre, physically as well as conceptually, providing the facilities for the many art and culture activities that the art centre cannot accomplish. It is a place where some new commercial ventures are happening - for example, the new line of Balgo glass, produced in the new glass making workshop - but primarily it is a place for historical and cultural recording and expression.

For many years all manner of objects, photographs, stories and recordings have been made in Balgo but are all held elsewhere. The Culture Centre is designed as a repository for all those items and has facilities to store, archive and display them, allowing people access to their own histories. It is equally involved in contemporary culture, providing a stage for bands and facilities for visitors to undertaking projects with the old people.

Several community projects were done to enhance the two centres, including a mural project among all four communities, a mosaic project with school kids through to the old artist working and then a substantial bush foods and medicine gathering project.

MERREPEN ARTS FESTIVAL, DALY RIVER NT

The Merrepen Arts Festival is held annually over the first weekend in June each year. Located 240 KM s/w of Darwin in the Nauiyu Community on the banks of the magnificent Daly River.

The festival encompasses a combination of events – an art auction, music and dance by local performers, bush tucker, weaving demonstration, football and sporting carnival. The Darwin Symphony Orchestra also plays an evening concert under the stars.

The ladies of the Nauiyu Choral also perform with songs they have written with orchestral backup.

The Merrepen Arts Festival is fast becoming one of Australia's premier Aboriginal cultural festivals with visitors traveling from all over Australia to experience this extraordinarily beautiful region and its fine art works and culture.

Merrepen Arts utilizes this festival to promote its paintings, prints, weavings and range of silk screen and batik fabrics.

BULA'BULA ARTS, RAMINGINING

Bula'bula Arts is undergoing a major restructuring following an ATSIIC decision to withdraw funding at the end of the 2001 financial year.

The art centre has been operational for more than twenty years, beginning its life in Milingimbi before moving to the mainland in the early 1980s. Bula'bula has been one of Australia's most prominent art centres and the region is home to many internationally renowned artists. In more recent years sales have plateaued or declined and Bula'bula has had few commercial exhibitions.

In August 2001, Felicity Wright was appointed as Grant Controller/Change Agent and is now on site working with the governing body and community members to reinvigorate the art centre, improve systems and communication, undertake executive training and develop a stronger sense of ownership and control amongst members.

While all this is happening the art centre is open for business and will be endeavouring to move stock held in the building and on consignment to generate some cash flow. The transition period will take 2-3 months and will include a strategic planning activity and the artists working with at least one other consultant.

It is mooted that Andrew Blake will come on board to discuss media and product with the artists, we're just waiting for confirmation from ATSIIC.

The grant controller consultancy will culminate in recruitment of new staff when the new positions have been determined.

Bula'bula Arts has a new email address: bulabulaarts@bigpond.com.au

8TH INTERNATIONAL WORKS ON PAPER FAIR: INDIGENOUS PRINTS

The 8th International Works on Paper Fair at Fox Studios in Sydney ran from 25-29 July 2001.

Northern Editions decided for the first time to take a stall there this year to promote and sell prints we have edited for Northern Territory, WA and SA artists. We were assisted in this by the Department of Industries and Business, Department of Arts & Museums and the Gordon Darling Foundation, who kindly provided the support we needed to pay for the stall, lighting, furniture hire, freight of work, a promotional brochure and Basil Hall's flight and accommodation costs.

As the only NT exhibitor amongst the 29 interstate and international galleries, we were proud to have such an extensive range of prints from Buku Larrngay Mulka, Yirrkala, Ernabella Arts, Maningrida Arts & Culture, Merrepen Arts, Daly River, Munupi Arts, Melville Island, Uru-puntja Artists, Utopia, Warlayirti Artists, Balgo, Warlukurlangu Artists, Yuendumu, and Warumpi Arts, Alice Springs. Thanks to all the Arts Centres who allowed us to represent them in Sydney.

We had a good deal of success with print sales and interest in Aboriginal prints in general was high. We will definitely go again in two years' time, if the communities would like us once again to man a booth.

MURAL ART AT MUNUPI ARTS AND CRAFTS

Munupi Arts and crafts Association at Pularumpi, Melville Island is receiving a face lift of colorful murals. The "up and coming" Cultural Centre was recently painted by 10 Munupi artists currently enrolled in the Certificate II Arts and crafts with Batchelor College with tutor Annie Franklin. The entrance features "Yikkini" the white cockatoo and an ocean scene kaleidoscope filled with colorful turtles, shells, dugong, fish and stingrays. The side wall portrays more traditional Tiwi designs and colors of ceremonial significance such as the Kulama, Pukamani and Pamajini.

Administered through Batchelor college and funded by Northern Territory Employment and Training Authority (NTETA) the mural is the first installation of four subject modules taught to Munupi Artists throughout 2001 by Batchelor's Annie Franklin. These subjects include painting, screen printing, marketing and occupational health and safety. Munupi thanks the combined support of NTETA and Batchelor College Arts and Crafts Department in facilitating new workshops and strengthening Munupi artists skills.

HTTP://WWW.ABORIGINALART.ORG

Last year Buku Larrnggay Mulka Art Centre at Yirrkala registered the domain name of "aboriginalart.org" to provide a portal for other aboriginal run art centres in the NT to link their web sites. The aim was to provide a useful alternative to the commercial web sites dealing in Aboriginal Art which were targeting art centres to join their website where they would be charged a setup membership fee and be charged between 10%-20% on any sales, which meant even less money would reach the artists, or contribute to the running of the art centres.

Another aim was to provide an entry point or common "portal" for art centres who may already have websites or were planning to develop a web site in the future, to date half a dozen centres have provided their web addresses and now have a link on the site.

Leonie Molloy of Redeye Media in Darwin has made a simple one page web site which contains a map of Australia with links to other art centres' web pages. This allows people searching the web for Aboriginal art to be directed to aboriginalart.org. This means that the work of submitting to the search engines can be done for one web address only and yet provide a link to any number of art centres.
